SMART TRAVEL URBAN STAYS

ALOHAS HOSTEL

Where it is: Located on Nathan Road, Alohas is about 7km from the Central District and a two-minute walk from the Jordan train station.

Why it's smart: While there are over a hundred hostels to choose from in Hong Kong, there are two key things that make Alohas a smart pick: 1) Having opened for business just last year, you can rest assured the fixtures and furnishings are new, giving you a number of clean and comfortable rooms to choose from, and 2) Each of the rooms has been given a bright and happy signature touch by budding artists from Hong Kong and Taiwan. The graffiti ranges from the whimsical, with a baby sleeping on a cat or a boy looking longingly through a window, to pop culture, with a cartoonish Iron Man and Spider-Man guarding you in your sleep, to the more edgy, with geometric patterns and Star Wars-inspired spacecraft – something for every taste.

Travellers' tip: A couple of the double bedrooms have a larger bathroom (complete with bathtub).

What it'll cost you: from ₹ 4,600; alohas.com.hk
